The Xavier Zubiri Foundation of North America continues its publishing program by announcing the publication this year of the first volume of Zubiri's great theology trilogy,

Man and God

In a definitive translation by Joaquin Redondo, critically revised by Nelson Orringer and Thomas Fowler, copublished with University Press of America. Reserve your copy now! Price not yet established, but expected to be about $40.

Recently published is Rafael Lazcano's comprehensive reference work,

Repertorio bibliográfico de Xavier Zubiri which lists every known work on or by Zubiri, through mid-2005, with complete bibliographic data to facilitate easy reference. Each work is categorized thematically, and in addition there is a complete Index of Names. No library where Zubiri studies are undertaken is complete without this handy reference. $30 in the United States, $37.50 elsewhere, postpaid.

Also available from the Foundation is Zubiri's magnum opus,

Sentient Intelligence

presented in Thomas Fowler's definitive translation, one authorized by Zubiri himself before his death. Here the three volumes of the original Spanish edition, Inteligencia y realidad, Inteligencia y logos, and Inteligencia y razón are rendered together in clear English, with a complete integrated index covering all three parts. The book also features a comprehensive introduction and a detailed graphical reading guide to help the reader navigate this philosophical masterpiece. $30 in the United States, $40 elsewhere, postpaid.

A few copies of Zubiri's first book,

Nature, History, God

are still available as well. This book contains some of Zubiri's most famous and insightful essays. $25 in the United States, $35 elsewhere, postpaid.
